INSIDE HIS PRIVATE WORLD

He loves soccer and selfies, dances the tango and eats more pasta than he should. An up-close look at the charming rebel who's changing the world

'You won't die from humiliation on the Internet. You have to get really strong and dig down deep and get really tough.'

—ANNE HATHAWAY, on dealing with judgment, to Refinery29

'I'm not twenty-something. I'm not trying to find myself—I know exactly who I am and exactly what I want.'

—TARAJI P. HENSON, on what she's looking for in a partner, to Glamour

'You try being 22, having a period and staying away from Google.'

—JENNIFER LAWRENCE, admitting she once searched "Jennifer Lawrence Ugly," to The New York Times

'Look at how #coolforthesummer we are... Friends for years, #sameoldlove'

—DEMI LOVATO, reuniting with pal Selena Gomez for an epic selfie, on Instagram

'I love my life. I'm a life lover, and if I'm not happy, I'm doing something wrong.'

—JOE MANGANIELLO, who calls his schedule "crazy busy," to reporters at the Lavo Casino Club at the Palazzo

'It is the most insanely amazing, most beautiful, unbelievable thing that can ever happen to you.'

—JUSTIN TIMBERLAKE, on being a dad to 5-month-old Silas, on The Tonight Show

'That's right, ladies. I've got to put this chocolate in the freezer.'

—KEVIN HART, setting a date for his wedding to fiancée Eniko Parrish, to Entertainment Tonight

Q & A

David Cook

The American Idol season 7 champ's new album Digital Vein is now available

Idol's last season is coming up—who would you love to see at a reunion?

I'm sad to see it go. I'd just love to see the original judging panel back for a minute. I still touch base with David Archuleta about once a month now.

How did the show change your life?

I can afford to pay my bills. I was living in Tulsa and was hustling to make ends meet. Idol allowed me the opportunity to make a living doing what I love to do.

We know you're amazing at making music, but do you have any hidden talents?

I'm not crazy good, but I can juggle a little.

—NICK MASLOW

Ones to Watch

Every year People's "Ones to Watch" portfolio introduces you to rising stars who are either generating lots of buzz now or poised to do just that in the next few months. For our 2015 portfolio, in this issue, we've brought together a fantastic crop of actors, musicians and influencers, like Shanice Williams, the magnetic 19-year-old unknown who'll be playing Dorothy in NBC's live telecast of The Wiz on Dec. 3; and a few impressive celebrity offspring—Evan Ross (son of Diana Ross), Francesca Eastwood (daughter of Clint Eastwood and Frances Fisher) and Domhnall Gleeson (son of the great Irish actor Brendan Gleeson). Also on the list: Brie Larson and Jacob Tremblay, the stars of Room, a serious Oscar contender opening Oct. 16. Larson, known for comedy until now, is shattering as a young woman imprisoned by a madman; as her son born in captivity, Tremblay, who's just 8, gives what may be the best screen performance ever by a child actor. On Sept. 16 in Los Angeles, we will toast the honorees at a celebration presented by Maybelline New York and sponsored by Timex. And we can't wait to see what the Ones to Watch do next.

'She's a breath of fresh air, poised, beautiful and funny' Penelope via people.com

Melissa McCarthy

Melissa McCarthy is amazing! Finally, someone in Hollywood my daughters can look up to.

Olivia Haverford via e-mail

A woman does not have to be as skinny as a stick to be healthy, beautiful and confident. It would be so boring if all women looked the same. Melissa is beautiful and talented. I think she is wonderful just the way she is.

Deb via people.com

As a tall person growing up, I was always advised to wear only certain types of clothes, but reading McCarthy's article was like a release from jail for me. Thank you for publishing such a confidence-boosting story.

Sumi Shan North Chelmsford, Mass.

I'm not saying obesity is something we should be embracing, but I definitely agree with the idea of loving ourselves as we are now while actively working toward better health. Way to go, Melissa!

Jen via people.com

Joan Lunden

I've loved Joan Lunden since her GMA days, and my heart broke for her when she announced her cancer diagnosis. I applaud her courage in fighting this horrible disease and for sharing her journey every step of the way with all of us. I love the spirit she has displayed and wish her a long and happy life!

Jane Stuart Lincoln, Neb.

Bowen Toomey

What an incredible family. I cried while reading the article on the Toomeys and the incredible love they have for Bowen. I wish you had put them on the cover. They are all so lucky to have found each other and truly deserve everything good in life.

Diane Feldman Reseda, Calif.

There should be more people like the Toomeys in this world. There are a lot of wonderful children in the world that need loving parents like them.

RED CARPET BFFS

Talk about a starry night. Longtime pals Sandra Bullock and George Clooney hammed it up on the red carpet at the Princess of Wales Theatre, where they promoted Our Brand Is Crisis, a political dramedy in which Bullock stars as a cunning strategist. (The role was originally written with Clooney in mind.) The famous friends flaunted their sly humor after the Sept. 11 premiere, joking onstage that Clooney played her “butt double” in one of the scenes. “George is a lot less hairy down there,” Bullock quipped. They kept the laughs coming at the film’s press conference the following day, with Clooney cracking that he could have played Bullock’s iconic Miss Congeniality character—because “I rock a swimsuit better than almost anybody. Well, a one-piece!” All jokes aside, the pair loved reuniting for a project. “We’ve seen each other through many facets and stages of life,” said Bullock. “The nice thing is we still like each other at the end of it. We still admire each other.”

Ellen Page (right) steps out for the first time publicly with her girlfriend, artist and surfer Samantha Thomas, at the Sept. 13 premiere of Freeheld, the film that inspired her to come out.

Matt Damon demonstrates how he faked zero-gravity scenes at a Sept. 11 press conference for The Martian, while director Ridley Scott and costars Sean Bean and Kate Mara look on.

Tom Hiddleston snaps a fan selfie before heading into the Sept. 13 premiere of his new thriller High-Rise.

Eddie Redmayne and Susan Sarandon hug it out at the Hollywood Foreign Press Association & InStyle's annual bash, Sept. 12.

The Martian actress Jessica Chastain shares a laugh with Emily Blunt, who stars in Sicario, at Entertainment Weekly's Must List party, Sept. 12.

FESTIVAL FAVORITES

Let the Oscar buzz begin for some sweet—and scary—star turns. Among the most-talked-about performances at the 2015 Toronto International Film Festival were Johnny Depp as gangster Whitey Bulger in Black Mass and Idris Elba as the commandant to child soldiers in Africa in Beasts of No Nation. Meanwhile Matt Damon had audiences rooting for him as a stranded astronaut in The Martian—as did Julianne Moore and Ellen Page as a lesbian couple fighting for their rights in Freeheld and Eddie Redmayne as a pioneering transgender artist in The Danish Girl. And in one of the most intensely emotional movies of all, Brie Larson and Jacob Tremblay (see page 98) play a kidnapped woman and her son in Room. Remember their names come awards season.

Johnny Depp escorts wife Amber Heard (in Elie Saab) to her premiere of The Danish Girl on Sept. 12.

TIMELESS BEAUTY

CAITLYN JENNER

THE TRUTH ABOUT HER FAMILY TENSIONS

BY AILI NAHAS

CAITLYN JENNER HAS felt like a woman for over 65 years, but she's only been living as one for four months, and by her own admission, the whirlwind journey hasn't been without a few bumps. "I'm far from perfect," Jenner wrote in her WhoSay editorial Sept. 14. "I'm still trying to figure out what it means to be a woman." And it's been under the watchful eye of millions. Since her official debut on the cover of Vanity Fair June 1, Jenner has been navigating uncharted territory—both publicly and with her famous family. "It's still really fresh for Kris," a family source says of Jenner's ex wife, to whom she was married for 23 years. "She does seem to really separate Caitlyn from her life now and has moved on the best she can." →

"It's a process," Kris Jenner told People of her relationship with her ex. "It's hard. Everything takes a little bit of time. But we're still family."

"I will make some mistakes," says Jenner (below, with Matt Lauer on Today and, right, on Ellen). "I want to continue to grow as a person."

'CAITLYN HAS A BIG SOCIAL LIFE, BUT HER FAMILY SITUATION MAKES HER FEEL LONELY. SHE WISHES THAT SHE WAS MUCH CLOSER WITH HER DAUGHTERS'

—A PRODUCTION SOURCE

There has been tension: Jenner was miffed when she didn't get an invite to daughter Kylie's graduation party in July, but "Kris felt it was her right," says a production source on Keeping up with the Kardashians. "Most divorced families don't celebrate every family event together!"

Following a variety of public statements from Caitlyn insinuating that Kris treated her badly during the marriage and knew about her desired transition before they even wed, Kris's daughters Kourtney, 36, Kim, 34, and Khloe, 31, "are all very defensive of their mom," adds the production source. "Caitlyn throws stones, but takes little responsibility." As for their two girls together, Kendall, 19, and Kylie, 18, "you can tell [the transition] still affects them, but they're accepting. They just have their own busy lives," says the source. "And Caitlyn can get lonely."

Now, with her E! series I Am Cait wrapped up,

Jenner is looking ahead. As possible manslaughter charges following a February car accident continue to weigh heavily on her, she is trying not to dwell on the past but is focusing instead on helping the LGBT community.

After raising eyebrows with several public statements—from applying to a country club using the name "Bruce" rather than Caitlyn so "I don't have to worry about locker rooms," to her admission on Ellen that she once didn't support gay marriage—Jenner is learning as she goes. "After hearing from my gay friends, it became clear to me that everyone should be able to marry the person they love," Jenner wrote on WhoSay. For her part, a source says the former Olympian is still attracted to women, but "is not putting a lot of energy into dating right now." Instead, says the production source, "she's focused on living the life she dreamed of for so long. She is happy to be living as a woman and that is enough for now."

—With reporting by Pernilla Cedenheim, Elizabeth Leonard and Matthew Weiss

SAMIA

The indie singer, 18—who hails from a famous family (Kathy Najimy and Dan Finnerty are her parents)—balances being a college freshman with recording her first EP. Mom and Dad are "totally supportive" of her career—but, she jokes, "I think it's in my mom's will that if I don't do four years of school, I don't get anything."

CATCHING UP WITH... ALISON SWEENEY

You recently announced that after eight years of hosting The Biggest Loser, you're not returning next season. What happened? You know, times change and situations change. It's a tough time in TV and producers have a lot of tough choices to make in the landscape. We talked and it wasn't an easy decision. It was just the right time for me to do something different.

How does it feel?

I feel great. I've had some time to get used to it. Just thinking about the response I've gotten from fans and former contestants makes me tear up. It's been an amazing run and I'm so proud.

You also left Days of Our Lives last year. Enjoying free time?

For sure! Change is good. It's been a year of spending time with my kids [Ben, 10, and Megan, 6] and taking them to school every day. That's been a big shift and a really important one for our family.

Excited about your new Hallmark movie Love on the Air?

It's been incredible. I developed the script with a writer and we got to shoot it earlier this year. And it was challenging. I was intimidated. Acting is such a different beast than hosting. And this character is so different from [my Days character] Sami Brady.

Will you still tune in to BL?

I love that it makes a difference in people's lives. I'll be rooting from my living room!

—JANINE RAYFORD RUBENSTEIN

SCANDAL'S BELLAMY YOUNG MY SURPRISING JOURNEY

You grew up in Asheville, N.C., with adoptive parents. Did you know anything about your birth parents?

We only had two lines on my dad and a paragraph on my mom. It said she loved to sing, so my mom who raised me would find any way to let me perform.

You even joined an cappella group while attending Yale.

I went to Yale thinking I would get a physics degree, which was my dearest love. It turns out I am not as good at physics [as I wanted to be], so I double-majored in English and theater and sang in a group called Mixed Company.

How did you get your professional acting start?

I was lucky enough to get cast in the first national tour of Meet

Me in St. Louis right out of school. Then I moved to New York and did a bunch of theater and eventually Broadway. Then I got kicked out of my illegal sublet in Manhattan and was dating a guy in L.A., so I decided to move [west].

You grew up with the first name Amy. Why did you change it?

There was already someone named Amy Young in the Screen Actors Guild, so I had to use a different name. My first [adoptive] dad died when I was 15, and his best friend, Bill, did all the dad stuff with me, so I did a mushing of our names. I felt like I could get away with it because I'm southern.

Did you know Mellie would become such a big character when you got cast on Scandal?

At the first table read, [creator Shonda Rhimes] told me I'd be in three episodes. She wanted to write a presidential divorce. I died inside when I heard that, but I kept a smile on my face and showed up to work every day. At some point they decided it was fun to write stuff for me. I don't want it to ever end.

And now you've recorded an album of cover songs, Far Away So Close. I chose songs with stories that spoke to my heart. They are songs you'd pour some Scotch and listen to at 2 a.m.

—PATRICK GOMEZ

"I can't believe the boundaries we've already pushed," Young, 45, says of filming with Tony Goldwyn (right) for Scandal's fifth season, which premieres Sept. 24 (along with other Shondaland hits Grey's Anatomy and How to Get Away with Murder) on ABC.

3 TRUTHS & 1 LIE with Meagan Good

THE ACTRESS, 34, STARS ON MINORITY REPORT, MONDAYS ON FOX

1 She owns two hairless cats and used to own two monkeys.

"I've always loved animals, but I'm allergic to cat hair. So when I saw Mr. Bigglesworth in Austin Powers, I said, 'They have cats like that?!'"

2 She dips her french fries in honey.

"I love sweet-and-salty stuff. Ketchup is cool, but I wanted the salt and sugar. I also love these chocolate bars with little bits of bacon in them."

3 She loved playing with bugs as a kid.

"My neighbor used to provide the bugs for Indiana Jones and Batman. Every once in a while a massive tarantula would be in the front lawn."

4 She celebrated New Year's Eve with Grace Jones.

"She was absolutely divine."

THE LIE

3. "I don't do spiders—spiders were hideous." She did have that job! The neighbor really

AMY (DUGGAR) KING MY WILD HONEYMOON!

After her big Arkansas wedding, former 19 Kids and Counting star—and Duggar cousin—Amy (Duggar) King, 28, skipped town for a sexy vacation with husband Dillon King in Mexico's party capital of Cancún. "It just feels so good to get away!" Amy, often dubbed "the rebel Duggar," tells People of leaving her conservative family's drama behind. "We're so in love!" —JANINE RAYFORD RUBENSTEIN

"Dillon calls this dress 'Dinner and Dessert!'" says Amy of the cheeky pic. "We're so blessed we can afford this lavish honeymoon. Every night has been something different. We love the theater here."

#Wokeuplikethis: "This trip has definitely brought us closer together," says Amy. "Before, we had boundaries in our relationship. Now, we wake up beside each other every day!"

Amy donned a skin-tight dress for a sexy night out with her new husband: "Going to take dance lessons and have a tequila tasting!"

Do not disturb! "We're so excited to get away from everyone, turn our phones on airplane mode and just enjoy being under a palm tree with a drink in our hand," says Amy.

THE MUPPETS RETURN!

WHEN THE MUPPETS

makes its highly anticipated return to ABC on Sept. 22, things are going to be a little awkward thanks to Miss Piggy and Kermit's tricky (and highly publicized) split. Executive produced by The Big Bang Theory's Bill Prady and Anger Management's Bob Kushell, the mockumentary-style sitcom follows the personal and professional lives of all the usual suspects—including Fozzie Bear, Gonzo and Pepe the King Prawn—as the entire gang works on Miss Piggy's late-night talk show Up Late with Miss Piggy with her ex Kermit (who already has a new lady on his arm!) as their boss. The plush pig (with help from the show's writers) opened up about navigating life after heartbreak to People:

"Where do I begin to tell the story of how great love can be? And let's admit it: The frog and I had a great love—one of the all-time greats. Right up there with Romeo and Juliet, Bogart and Bacall, Jay Z and Beyoncé. But in the past year or so, I realized Kermit and I might be better off apart. Oh sure, we cared deeply about each other, but we also wanted different things. I wanted to go out and soak in the A-list nightlife. He wanted to stay home and soak in a tub of tepid swamp water. I wanted Hollywood. He wanted vines.

Despite these differences, we stayed together. After all, the public adores us together, and who are we to deny an adoring public? Then one day I reached a tipping point. I remember that day like it was just this past June . . . which it was. [I realized,] sure, Kermit and I had a great time together. But now it's time for moi.

"While the frog and I are no longer romantically involved, we are still working together [on The Muppets]. But as any newly single lady knows, there is a lot more to life than work. Which is why I am taking this opportunity to officially announce that I am dating—a lot! In addition to going out with A-list actors, directors and producers (I draw the line at writers), I will also be dating nonfamous people—extremely good-looking nonfamous people—as well as men who are not in my league but who desperately want to go out with me. If they're rich, I'll see them too—but only for a photo op. (For details about whether you qualify, see my agent.)"

The TV host and cancer survivor, 41, promotes stories that inspire positivity

I felt so destroyed after I was diagnosed with breast cancer in March of 2014. I knew it was going to be a long journey, and I made a conscious effort to say, “Okay, starting from this moment I’m going to take on everything with a positive attitude.” While I lay in bed recovering from my mastectomy, my husband said to me, “Babe, when life gives you lemons, you gotta make lemonade.” That’s all he had to say to me, and we started Gotta Make Lemonade. The goal of the site is to inspire positivity in the face of adversity. It’s a destination for visitors to submit their stories of overcoming a challenge—there are stories about battling through illness, infertility, injuries, depression. I didn’t realize just how much positivity could help you heal. —REPORTED BY CHRISTINA DUGAN

A DOZEN COOL THINGS TO SEE, HEAR, READ AND DOWNLOAD THIS WEEK

1 Black Mass

No.

Johnny Depp digs deep to channel a notorious gangster

MOVIE THRILLER You're going to see that face in your nightmares. But, creepy though he looks with his startling blue eyes, this isn't another one of Depp's self-indulgent romps behind a mask. The jarring makeup serves the real-life tale of the resplendently feral James "Whitey" Bulger, a South Boston crime lord who led the FBI on a 16-year manhunt. Black Mass is technically a pas de deux—Bulger is aided and abetted by his neighborhood pal and friendly FBI handler John Connolly (Joel Edgerton)—and it's carried by a remarkably skilled supporting cast. But Depp is shudder-inducing. There's no disguising the richness of this performance. (Sept. 18, R)

No. 2 Scream Queens

Beware, snooty sororities!

TV HORROR Ryan

Murphy's new series has all the gore and mean-girl spirit of his American Horror Story, only without the churning psychosexual tension. It's like AHS taking a Mentos break. Sorority princess Chanel (Emma Roberts) is having the worst semester ever: A serial killer is picking off Kappa girls—and the college is requiring the sorority to open its doors to all pledges. This exposes Chanel to a girl who smells (she says) like hot-dog water. To be queen, it seems, is to scream. (FOX, Sept. 22, 8 p.m.)

Wesley Snipes gambles on a high-stakes game.

No. 3 TV DRAMA Las Vegas security expert Alex Kane (Philip Winchester) is caught up in a game of terrifying stakes: The world's high rollers place bets on whether he can prevent deadly crimes. The premise gets convoluted, but Wesley Snipes, as the pit boss, gives a fun, showy—and winning—performance. (NBC, Sept. 24, 10 p.m.)

No. 4 Katharine McPhee, Hysteria

MUSIC POP The American

Idol alum hasn't released an album in five years, but heaven knows she's had distractions: There was a very public divorce, a TV failure (Smash) followed by a hit (Scorpion)—then, at last, she found love again (she's dating costar Elyes Gabel). Perhaps that's why romance is the inspiration for this worthy comeback, which has some seasoned hitmakers in the credits: Sia helped pen the soaring "Round Your Little Finger," and Ryan Tedder cowrote "Stranger than Fiction," a sonic sunbeam about serendipitous love. She has the most fun on "Feather," "Burn" and the title track—all McPheever-inducing tunes ideal for a girls' night out.

Man and wives: Jeffs and the women of the FLDS.

No. 5 Prophet's Prey
Director Amy Berg lays bare a cult's secrets
MOVIE DOCUMENTARY When Warren Jeffs went to prison in 2007 for sexually abusing minors, it looked like the beginning of the end for the so-called prophet's imperious rule over some 10,000 followers in his polygamous sect, the Fundamentalist Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints. Not even close, it turns out. Survivors of the cult reveal how Jeffs rose to power and how he holds it even now. This is a shocking tale, one that gives a disturbingly ironic spin to the consoling old phrase "Stone walls do not a prison make." (Sept. 18, unrated)

What goes up may not come down: Clarke and crew.

No. 7 Everest
MOVIE DRAMA Jason Clarke and Jake Gyllenhaal play climbers Rob Hall and Scott Fischer, guides on one of the most disastrous real-life treks in history. But make no mistake: The mountain and the weather are the real stars. With incredible footage that required the actors to shoot in avalanche-prone areas, Everest is as harrowing as disaster films get. That said, Clarke's Hall adds real humanity to those arresting aerial shots. (Sept. 18, PG-13)

No. 6 Keith Richards: Under the Influence
NETFLIX DOCUMENTARY As he releases Crosseyed Heart, his first solo album in 23 years, the Rolling Stones guitarist takes us on an ambling, generous-spirited tour of the band's influences. He leads us to a sacred site where you'll find what he considers rock's fountain of youth, holy grail and big bang. They're all one and the same: the blues. Richards loves country music too, but without Muddy Waters, we'd have no Stones, no evil twin to the Beatles—in short, little or no satisfaction. (Sept. 18)

The Rolling Stones' Keith Richards, now 71.

No. 8 The Bastard Executioner
TV DRAMA Welsh warrior Wilkin Brattle

(Lee Jones) resolves to retire from battle after he wakes from an intense dream that includes a religious revelation delivered by an angel (this is the Middle Ages) and gratuitous female nudity (this is modern TV). But, things being what they are under brutal English overlords in the 14th century, he's forced into unwanted employment as royal executioner and torturer. The potential for this new show from Kurt Sutter (Sons of Anarchy) is—ha ha—ax-cellent. (FX, Tuesdays, 10 p.m.)

Lee Jones is a good man put to bad use in old Wales.

No. 9 Sicario
MOVIE THRILLER Emily Blunt gets lost while hunting a drug king gray, Sicario exists in a world of means, ends and nothing else. FBI agent Kate Macer (Blunt) hasn't learned this lesson when she's enlisted for a drug task force, along with the shady Alejandro (a beautifully menacing Benicio Del Toro). Director Denis Villeneuve (Prisoners) torques the tension as the team hunts a drug kingpin. Whether Kate gets out alive is one thing—living with what she's done is another. (Sept. 18, R)

No. 12 The Best Books of the Fall

Memoirs from gutsy women, thoroughly engrossing fiction and more fun with Humans of New York EDITED BY KIM HUBBARD

Jenny Lawson
Furiously Happy
“You’re not crazy,” the author’s mother says. “You’re just sensitive. And...a little...odd.” In her second memoir, bestseller Lawson (Let’s Pretend This Never Happened) embraces the odd, writing in hilarious, poignant detail about her lifelong struggle with anxiety and depression. (Sept.)

Mary-Louise Parker
Dear Mr. You

The Weeds star’s elliptical memoir takes the form of beautifully written letters to the men in her life, from the grandfather she never met to the orderly who tended to her after the birth of her son. (Nov.)

Margo Jefferson
Negroland

Part autobiography, part cultural history, Jefferson’s eye-opening story explores both the privileges and the crippling restrictions of growing up in “the colored elite” of Civil Rights-era America. (Sept.)

Amy Stewart
Girl Waits with Gun

This rollicking western about a woman who’ll do anything to save her family is based on the true tale of one of the country’s first female deputy sheriffs. (Sept.)

Brandon Stanton
Humans of New York: Stories

Did Stanton’s bestselling Humans of New York leave you hungry to learn more about his subjects? His new crop of photos includes longer interviews so you can do just that. (Oct.)

Kate Morton
The Lake House

At a crumbling mansion in Cornwall, England, disgraced detective

Sadie Sparrow stumbles onto a 70-year-old missing persons case. Can she solve it—and her own problems as well? Morton’s moody, suspenseful latest is the perfect page-turner for a chilly night. (Oct.)

Gloria Steinem
My Life on the Road

Over the last four decades, the feminist icon, now 81, has spent at least half of her time traveling. “It’s right up there with life-threatening emergencies and truly mutual sex as a way of being fully alive,” she writes. Filled with bracing insights about how the itinerant life has shaped and succored her, Steinem’s road-trip memoir is a delight. (Oct.)

Jojo Moyes
After You

Moyes’s charming sequel to 2012’s Me Before You finds Louisa, still grieving the suicide of her true love Will, stuck in a dreary job and feeling lost—until new romance comes along. (Sept.)

HOLY SELFIE!
Francis (with fans in '13)
eschews security concerns to get close to his flock. "Protocol is cold and detached," he says.

It's not every day a Pope turns up at the local optical shop. So on Sept. 3, when the unmistakable figure in the white cassock stopped in to check out Alessandro Spiezia's wares in Rome, a camera-wielding crowd soon gathered outside. After trying on some frames, Francis, 78—being neither a big spender nor seeker of special favors—concluded quietly, “Just new lenses. And, please, Alessandro, charge me whatever it costs.” Then he and a bodyguard headed back to his waiting Ford Focus. “What’s so strange?” he asked, stopping for a few photos. “Where else do you go for new glasses except the optician?”

But if the leader of the Catholic Church was surprised by the uproar his little shopping trip produced, wait until this regular-guy pontiff sees the fuss more than 2 million fans will make when he touches down Sept. 22 for his first-ever visit to the United States. Excitement over Francis's six-day swing through Washington, D.C., New York and Philadelphia stretches from the White House (President Obama has told aides he wants to be at the airport for Francis's arrival) to late-night TV (“Pope Hope,” Stephen Colbert calls him; “More like Pope Fran-TASTIC!” says Jimmy Kimmel), to Philly's Curran-Fromhold prison, where inmates and guards are working on a hand-carved chair for his Sept. 27 visit. Debby Fireman, one of dozens of Philadelphia entrepreneurs offering papal-visit souvenirs, says Francis, who was elected in 2013, is unlike any of the 265 men who wore the papal miter before him: “People are starved for this Pope's

A Common Touch

When Francis appointed Konrad Krajewski to run his personal office of charity, the Polish archbishop says he was told, “You can sell your desk. . . . You have to go out there and look for the poor.” As the desk goes, so goes the traditional stodginess of Church hierarchy. Whether he’s clowning with charity workers (above), washing the feet of prison inmates, cradling the suffering or cold-calling those who write him despairing letters, Francis practices the human connection he preaches—and with a warm ease. He invites strangers to use “tu,” the informal “you” in Italian, insisting, “You and I are friends now.” After Diego Neria Lejárraga, a transgender Spanish man denounced as “daughter of the devil” by his parish priest, wrote of his shaken faith, Francis invited Neria and his fiancée over to Santa Marta for a long talk. “I thought God had forgotten me, but Francis fixed it,” says Neria. “If there is an embodiment of Jesus, it is Francis.”

talk of love and acceptance.”

The former Argentine “street priest” known as Jorge Mario Bergoglio developed his inclusive philosophy while ministering in the darkest corners of Buenos Aires. As Pope, he has prioritized the poor, refused the imperial trappings of the Vatican and radically softened the Church’s tone on everything from homosexuality (“Who am I to judge?” he asks) to abortion (Women should be forgiven their “agonizing and painful decision,” as long as the they are contrite, he says).

‘That smile of his, that twinkle in his eye—he’s everybody’s grandfather’

—MSGR. SAL CRISCUOLO

Some conservatives recoil, but at Washington, D.C.’s St. Patrick’s Church, where Francis will meet the homeless served by Catholic Charities, Msgr. Sal Criscuolo hears echoes of Jesus. “Francis is living Christ’s life and example,” the monsignor says. Or, as Fireman puts it, “he really is the people’s Pope, and that’s why people are coming in throngs to try to be near him.”

People like Noël Zemborain, who set off with her family of six in their Volkswagen microbus in March—from Argentina—on a 13,000-mile road trip to Philadelphia. They won’t get a selfie with His Holiness: They’ll be among the some 1.5 million attendees at his World Meeting of Families Mass on Sept. 27. But it’s enough. “We are very fond of Pope Francis,” Zemborain, 39, told People. “He’s someone you could imagine being with in a bar and talking to like a friend.”

Cafeteria style meals

Catching a ride

1. Francis (in ‘14) lunches in the Vatican workers’ mess. 2. At Spiezia Optics Sept. 3 3. Taking the bus to a retreat. 4. Santa Marta’s spartan quarters. 5. A pair of red loafers like his predecessors’ were made for him, but Francis opted for plain old black.

‘Just the lenses, please’

'PRAY FOR ME'

It's Francis's refrain with everyone he meets, from a young disabled man in St. Peter's Square (in '13) to the inmates at Rebibbia prison in April (far left), whom he urged to "pray that the Lord washes away my filth as well."

FRANCIS'S FAVORITE THINGS

'FOOTBALL'
He's a lifelong fan of Argentina's Saints of San Lorenzo soccer team.

COOKING

Modest about his prowess, he once joked, "I've never killed anyone!" A specialty: baked suckling pig.

THE TANGO

"It's something I have inside of me," Francis has said. He can do the traditional version but prefers the happier, quickstep tango called milonga.

BEETHOVEN

In particular, the Leonore Overture No. 3 conducted by Wilhelm Furtwängler, whom he calls "the best director."

THE DIVINE COMEDY

Francis likes Dostoyevsky and Hölderlin, but says of Dante's poem envisioning the afterlife, "I must have read it four times."

A Modest Life

Francis took a vow of poverty when he became a Jesuit at age 32 and he sets a frugal tone at the Vatican. Rejecting the limo and palatial apartments of Benedict XVI and a long line of other predecessors, Francis bunks with dozens of housemates at the Santa Marta guesthouse, where, having gained 15 lbs. in office, he's under doc's orders to cut back on the buffet's pasta del giorno.

A Reluctant Celebrity

The Harlem Globetrotters made him an honorary member. Hillary Clinton has said she envies people who'll meet him. And he'll get a 21-gun salute at the White House. But the VIP fawning has hardly swept Francis off his feet. "To depict the Pope as a kind of superman or a star seems to me offensive," he has said. Any swag he receives—whether an iPad (from a Uruguayan priest) or a Harley-Davidson motorcycle (from the company)—is auctioned for charity. Which might explain why President Obama, selecting a gift last year, stuck with seeds from his wife's garden. Francis himself is not a fussy gift giver. As pal Mercedes Ninci and other friends from Argentina said their goodbyes after an August visit, Ninci recalls, "he disappeared for 10 minutes" to find them a bottle of grappa to take home.

1. The Harlem Globetrotters tried teaching Francis a trick or two when they visited St. Peter's Square May 6. 2. Angelina Jolie Pitt called it an honor to screen her film Unbroken at the Vatican in January. She came home with a keepsake rosary. 3. President Obama received Francis's book The Joy of the Gospel at the Vatican in March 2014. The Pope's written word, the President said, "will give me strength and will calm me down."

WHERE HE STANDS

WOMEN

The priesthood is still out of the question, but Francis encourages female leadership in the Church: "The feminine genius is needed."

GAYS

"If a homosexual person is of goodwill and is in search of God, I am no one to judge." With that, he transformed the Church's tone from condemnation to compassion—but did not overturn its stand that homosexual acts are a sin.

GREED

His personal frugality dovetails with his vision of "a Church which is poor and for the poor." Denouncing trickle-down economics and the "idolization" of money over people, Francis suspended a German bishop who spent $43 million on a mansion. And with Syrian refugees flooding Europe, he directed churches to take them in, starting with the Vatican.

GLOBAL WARMING

With experience in chemistry, Francis issued a data-driven encyclical this year saying humanity's unfettered pursuit of profit risks turning Earth into an "immense pile of filth."

SEX ABUSE

After initially defending the Church's handling of the scandal, he asked forgiveness for the "evil" of some priests and appointed a woman who was molested as a child to his commission tackling "the shame of the Church."

She's a supermodel who has graced countless magazine covers and launched multiple television shows as a self-made media magnate, but Tyra Banks still has insecurities. Does she ever leave the house without makeup on? "Never!" says Banks. "At least not unless I have on big sunglasses and red lipstick. Then I feel fiercely incognito!"

Key word: "fierce." Tyra Banks has embraced the term for decades, first as a barrier-breaking supermodel in the '90s, then as the fearless host of America's Next Top Model (now in its 22nd cycle!), who told the media to "kiss my fat ass" when she drew criticism for her figure in 2007. Now, with a new syndicated talk show, Tyra Presents the FABLife, and her direct-selling cosmetics line, Tyra Beauty, Banks, 41, is hoping to impart some of that attitude to her fans. "I want women to be in control of themselves," says Banks. "I want them to say, 'I want to be a boss,' without feeling like they're being too ambitious." And when it comes to self-image, Banks is firmly on the side of do what makes you feel good. Stripping off her own makeup to pose au naturel for People, the former cover girl, who hasn't done "any age stuff yet," says she's nonetheless supportive of women who do. "Natural beauty is unfair," she says. "To me, cosmetics, weaves, plastic surgery, they're all just leveling the playing field."

Banks's own journey to self-empowerment began with her mother, Carolyn London, who "restrategized" her daughter's career after a 20-year-old Banks was told she was too heavy for high fashion. "My mom took me for pizza, and she told me, 'You are a product,'" Banks recalls. "'You can tweak your product for the audience, or you can find another audience.' So we found another audience." Banks's career soon skyrocketed as she signed contracts with Victoria's Secret and Cover Girl and landed the cover of Sports Illustrated's coveted swimsuit issue twice. For the budding star, it was a freeing moment: "When I would gain weight and I had a big Victoria's Secret shoot, I was like, 'Yes. I ate burgers for two months and my ass is 10 lbs. heavier,'" says Banks. "I'd just tell my hairdresser to tease up my hair, because that would make my booty look smaller."

After she transitioned away from modeling with her own talk show and Top Model, Banks says, her mother inspired her to create Tyra Beauty, a line that encourages women to attain financial control. "My mom stayed in a marriage because she didn't have the power or the money [to leave]," says Banks. "That's deeply ingrained in me, and it's why I wanted to start a company that is direct selling, so women can make money and have that freedom." Says

London: "Tyra has had razor-sharp focus her whole life, but she's on a mission for others, and not just for herself.

Legal Notice

IF YOU RECEIVED AN AUTOMATED
CALL BETWEEN AUGUST 2011 AND
AUGUST 2012 OFFERING A "FREE"
CRUISE IN EXCHANGE FOR TAKING A POLITICAL OR PUBLIC OPINION
SURVEY, A CLASS ACTION LAWSUIT MAY AFFECT YOUR RIGHTS.

www.FreeCruiseCallClassAction.net

COURT AUTHORIZED NOTICE OF CLASS ACTION

You may be affected by a class action lawsuit claiming that Caribbean Cruise Line, Inc., Vacation Ownership Marketing Tours, Inc., The Berkley Group, Inc., Economic Strategy Group, Economic Strategy Group, Inc., and Economic Strategy Group, LLC (the "Defendants") marketed timeshares and vacation packages through automated survey calls purporting to offer a free cruise in exchange for taking a public opinion and/or political survey. The lawsuit claims that this conduct violated the federal Telephone Consumer Protection Act (the "TCPA") because consumers did not consent to receive these calls. Defendants deny that they made, or are liable for the calls. The Court has not decided who is right. If the case is not resolved through legal motions or settled, the lawyers for the Classes will have to prove their claims at a trial.

Am I part of one of the Classes? You may be a Class Member if you received an automated telephone call (i.e., a call containing a prerecorded message that used a robotic voice) between August 2011 and August 2012 made by, on behalf, or for the benefit of Defendants that offered a free cruise in exchange for taking an automated public opinion and/or political survey. You may need to have or obtain records of the calls in order to establish that you are a Class Member. You may obtain records of calls from your telephone carriers. More information, including the full class definition, is in the detailed Long Form Website Notice at www.FreeCruiseCallClassAction.net.

What are the Plaintiffs asking for? The Plaintiffs are asking the Court to award each Class Member monetary damages of $500 per automated survey call, or $1500 per call per Class member if Defendants "knowingly" or "willfully" violated the TCPA. Plaintiffs are also asking the Court to enter an order prohibiting the Defendants from making unsolicited automated survey calls in violation of the TCPA in the future.

What are my rights & options? You have a choice about whether to continue to be a potential class member or ask to be excluded. By doing nothing, you are staying in the Classes, and you could potentially recover, if you are able to meet the criteria outlined above. If the Plaintiffs obtain money or benefits, from any trial or settlement, you will be notified about how to apply for a share and about any rights you have at that time. Regardless of whether the Plaintiffs win or lose the legal motions or trial, you will not be able to sue or continue to sue the Defendants for unsolicited automated calls made between August 2011 and August 2012 that involved a political and/or public opinion survey. You will also be legally bound by all orders and judgments the Court makes in this class action. If you take action to exclude yourself from the case, you will not get any money or benefits from the lawsuit if they are awarded, but you keep any rights you may have to sue Defendants over the legal issues in this case.

Who represents me? The Court has appointed a team of lawyers from Edelson PC and Loevy & Loevy as the attorneys to represent the Classes. They are called "Class Counsel." They are experienced in handling similar class action cases. You do not have to pay Class Counsel, or anyone else, to participate. Instead, if they get money or benefits for the Classes, they may ask the Court for attorneys' fees and costs. If the Court grants Class Counsel's request, the fees and costs would either be deducted from any money obtained for the Classes or paid separately by the Defendants. If you want to be represented by your own lawyer in this case, you may hire one at your expense. More information about these lawyers is available at www.edelson.com and www.lovvy.com, respectively.

How and when will the Court decide who is right? Class Counsel will have to prove the Plaintiffs' claims at a trial if the case is not settled or decided through legal motions. The trial will be heard at Everett McKinley Dirksen United States Courthouse, 219 S Dearborn St., Chicago, Illinois 60604, but a trial date is not yet scheduled. A trial may be scheduled without further notice to you. During the trial, a Jury or the Judge will hear all of the evidence to help them reach a decision about whether the Plaintiffs or Defendants are right about the claims in the lawsuit. There is no guarantee that the Plaintiffs will win or that they will get any money for the Classes. Nor is there any guarantee that you will be considered a Class Member.

How do I get more information? This Notice is only a summary of the lawsuit. For more information including the full notice and instructions on how to exclude yourself from the Classes, go to www.FreeCruiseCallClassAction.net, contact the claims administrator at 1-888-882-0365 or ESG Berkley Caribbean Cruise Line Class Action Administrator, P.O. Box 30184, College Station, TX 77842-3184, or call Class Counsel at 1-866-354-3015.

FABLIFE FUN

"This is not your mama's talk show," says Banks (with, from left, cohosts Leah Ashley, Joe Zee, Chrissy Teigen and Lauren Makk). On working with her "idol," Teigen says, "there is no cattiness or pettiness with Tyra. She enjoys seeing other people succeed."

She gets more fulfillment from what she gives versus what she gets." She has a similar mission when it comes to her talk show. "I want people to relax and have fun but also learn something," says Banks, joking that, with four cohosts including model Chrissy Teigen, she'll enjoy the chance to "sit back sometimes."

Not that the self-proclaimed "workaholic" will ever rest on her laurels completely, especially when it comes to the pressure she feels as a public figure whose size is still a topic of public consumption. "It's a weird dance," admits Banks, openly discussing her current weight of 168 lbs. "When I was at my healthiest, about five years ago, I was thin, but I felt conflicted, like it wasn't the best example to show women," she says. "I'm the girl who said, 'Kiss my fat ass.' I'm the thicker runway model. Sometimes I feel like my body doesn't belong to me."

Now, as she dreams of having children with her boyfriend of two years, photographer Erik Asla, 50, that notion is even more poignant. When she turned 40, "the one thing I was not happy about in my life was that I did not have kids," Banks says. "Since I was 24, I used to say every year, 'I will have kids in three years.' But my business is very entrepreneurial, and I kept trying to find time for it to happen. Then, when you're like, 'I'm just going to do it,' it's not so easy." Banks tears up as she discusses using IVF to try to get pregnant: "It's really difficult. I've had some not-so-happy, traumatic moments."

'Age isn't a bad thing. It's not the number on the paper, it's the face in the mirror!'

Through the tough times, Banks has relied on Asla for support. "So many women are scared to get old, but I look forward to getting old with my man," she says. And Banks hasn't given up on her hopes for a family. "I don't just want one child. I'd love a litter!" she says with a laugh. "Maybe they'll be running the family business. I do want a legacy. But I'll be retired, chilling, eating. Maybe I'll be 200 lbs.! But I'll be happy." ●

THE STARS OF THE NBC HIT CHAT ABOUT
MUSIC, KARAOKE NIGHT AND THE DEEP FRIENDSHIPS THEY'VE FORMED

The Voice team
(from left):
Blake Shelton,
Adam Levine,
Gwen Stefani,
Pharrell
Williams and Carson Daly.

When The Voice returns for its ninth season on Sept. 21, the show's four coaches—Adam Levine, 36, Blake Shelton, 39, Gwen Stefani, 45, and Pharrell Williams, 42—will be back on television battling over aspiring singers hoping to catch their big break. “It’s not a scripted show,” says host and executive producer Carson Daly, 42. “What people enjoy is the chemistry.” People’s Melody Chiu caught up with the superstars on-set, where they opened up about what exactly goes on behind the scenes of NBC’s hit singing competition:

If the four of you had a theme song, what would it be?

SHELTON: “Love Shack” by the B-52s. This is the most loving combination [of coaches]. We have the tightest bond.

LEVINE: The Munsters’ theme. Blake’s kind of like Herman Munster.

STEFANI: The first thing that came to mind was “Don’t You (Forget About Me).” It’s my second time coming back, and that song makes me have that feeling of “I’ll always have this moment.”

When there’s downtime on-set, do you all hang out together?

STEFANI: Well, I’m here two hours before everyone else. I love doing glam, but I love sleeping even more. [Sometimes] I just go, “Talk amongst yourselves. I’ll be over here.” [Laughs]

LEVINE: The trailers are set up so they’re facing each other. It’s a very communal vibe.

WILLIAMS: We visit each other.

SHELTON: Carson and I usually go back to the trailer compound and have a few drinks. Adam goes back to his trailer and stares at the mirror.

Who would dominate on karaoke night?

WILLIAMS: Probably Blake. When he gets into character, he’s really funny.

LEVINE: Blake’s so tall and big. He sticks out in any environment. Just his sheer presence alone would be pretty hard to beat.

SHELTON: I’m a one-trick pony. Pharrell could pull a song out of a hat and figure out a way to do it right.

"There's a lot of love," says Williams (above, with Shelton, Stefani and Levine). Adds Daly (below, relaxing with the coaches in the backstage area they've set up between their five trailers): "We've become such a family."

STEFANI: Adam. Because Adam needs to dominate everything, right?

Who has the best taste in music?

LEVINE: Oh man, not Blake.

SHELTON: I'm usually walking around with my phone with '80s music playing. It really irritates Adam.

LEVINE: It's not his taste in music. It's that he thinks he's discovered something that's existed for so long. He'll be like, "Have you heard that song 'Highway to Hell'?" I'm like, "Yeah, Blake. I have. Because I don't live in a cave."

Which coach would you pick to swap lives with for a day?

LEVINE: Probably Pharrell, so I could just be super, super cool for a day. I could wear anything, and it would look cool.

SHELTON: There's a lot of good options, but I would pick Adam because he's married to a supermodel. Need I say more?

STEFANI: I might pick Blake because he has a weird life. He has animals and does country stuff, which would be so different. Adam or Pharrell's life would be kind of like my same life.

WILLIAMS: Blake has a really interesting life, and Adam has the best humor. Gwen is superwarm and loving and ultracool. They're all superheroes in a lot of ways.

If you were auditioning, who would you pick as a coach?

STEFANI: I would want to work with any of them!

SHELTON: Gwen. Have you seen her? If I'm gonna be in a rehearsal room with Pharrell, Adam or Gwen, who the hell do you think I'm gonna pick?

LEVINE: Gwen is a lot more beautiful than Blake. It would be between Gwen and Pharrell. I would probably not choose Blake.

WILLIAMS: It's three really brilliant people, and on top of just being as good as they are at what they do, they couldn't be more down-to-earth. ●

LONG JOURNEY

Top: Weathers at home with dog Jack in September. Center: with Peach six days after his rescue. Bottom: on Everest before the climb.

GRINNING ON THE RED CARPET AT THE EVEREST PREMIERE IN L.A. ON SEPT. 9, Beck Weathers took his place alongside his wife, Peach, and actor Josh Brolin, who portrays him in the new drama. "Going to a Hollywood premiere is one more thing I can cross off my bucket list!" Weathers, 68, tells People. His list is more formidable than most: In 1996 the Dallas pathologist was among the 11 climbers on Mt. Everest whose disastrous journey would be immortalized in Jon Krakauer's 1997 bestseller Into Thin Air. (Eight climbers died.) "It was the image of my wife and children that drove me to my feet," says the father of two, who was in a hypothermic coma when rescuers reached him "and woke me after 15 hours of being frozen facedown in the ice." Weathers lost his hands and nose to frostbite and underwent more than 10 reconstructive surgeries in the years that followed. Prior to Everest the adrenaline junkie—who now travels as a motivational speaker—was suffering from depression and his marriage was in trouble. But the climb changed all that. "When I returned home, I made a conscious decision to find little things to appreciate that I would not have been able to had I not struggled back to life," he says. In May he and Peach, 66, celebrated their 39th anniversary, and with a new granddaughter in the family, Weathers says, "life just keeps getting better." —MIA McNIECE

Anne Hathaway & Robert De Niro

FROM FACEBOOK TO FLIP PHONES, THE OSCAR WINNERS RIFF ON THEIR INTERN GENERATION GAP (AND WHY IT'S NOT THAT BIG!)

She's the boss in the new film The Intern, out Sept. 25, but offscreen Anne Hathaway was the nervous newbie to costar Robert De Niro. "It took me three weeks to say anything past 'hi' to him!" she says. Hathaway, 32, and De Niro, 72, sat down with People's Janine Rayford Rubenstein to chat about their odd-couple comedy—and the difference a few decades makes.

ROLE REVERSAL
Her character calls the shots, but "I didn't boss Bob around," says Hathaway (with De Niro in The Intern).

Do either of you still get starstruck?

ANNE With him I did! I'm curious, Bob, when was the last time you felt that way?

ROBERT Brando. When I met him, he was great. There were others—just can't think of them offhand.

Does your generation gap feel as wide as it's portrayed onscreen?

ANNE I never look at it like, "How are we different?" I always think, "My gosh, how much more have you seen!"

ROBERT I feel it. I have a computer, but I don't do Facebook, don't do Twitter or—what's that other one?

ANNE Instagram. Bob, can I out you about something? He has a flip phone. We talked about it when he wasn't around. We all thought it was cute.

ROBERT They're easy to use!

Do you have any intergenerational friendships in real life?

ANNE I was playing a game of Celebrity with my friends who are 83 and 77. Their celebrities were Norma Shearer and President Eisenhower, and mine was Beyoncé.

ROBERT I have young actor friends like Bradley Cooper. I feel closer to younger people than I do people my own age, except for some of my dear old friends.

ANNE That's because he's got more energy than anyone I've ever met. You don't think so because he's superchill right now. But at 8 a.m. I've had a coffee and Bob's like, "I built a hotel."

If you could intern anywhere, where would it be?

ROBERT NASA. I'd learn about quantum physics and all that stuff.

ANNE Pixar. They tell some of my favorite stories, so I'd love to observe their think tank.

You're both Oscar winners. What is your favorite movie of each other's?

ROBERT I liked her very much in The Devil Wears Prada, though when I saw her singing and dancing in a tribute to Meryl Streep at the Kennedy Center, I must say, I was very impressed.

ANNE I don't have one of his. I have many. I went on one of the better dates of my life to see Analyze This.

Was that with your husband, Adam Shulman?

ANNE No, I was 16 and got my first real kiss that night. It was the best kiss—and little did you know, Bob, it's very closely tied to you and Billy Crystal. ●

From Hardship to Happiness

AFTER A CHILDHOOD OF FINANCIAL UNCERTAINTY, THE INTERNET STAR IS NOW LIVING HER DREAM BY PATRICK GOMEZ

Growing up, Eva Gutowski didn't have to worry much about money. But all that changed when the future YouTube sensation entered middle school and her mother, Ericka, lost her job. Suddenly her family were uprooted from their Southern California home and moved into a one-bedroom apartment. "It was tough," Gutowski says of the adjustment. "My bedroom was a living room that I shared with my little sister, and we were eating Cup O' Noodles every day." Once a bold and confident child who enjoyed acting and singing, Gutowski says she had to "let go" of her creative outlets and became embarrassed to invite friends over. "They always had these big mansions, and I lived down the street on the couch."

Her Life as Eva

COMEDIC GENIUS

Gutowski started out doing makeup tutorials but then entered the “mostly male” world of comedy videos.

THE NEXT OPRAH?

“I want my own talk show,” says Gutowski, who offers teens advice on things like what to do on spring break (above). “I want to inspire.”

MUSIC VIDEO MOGUL

“It was really crazy,” she says of working with a team on the video for “Literally My Life,” a song she wrote.

Noticing she was in a funk while living at home to save money during her freshman year at California State University at Fullerton, Gutowski’s father, John, encouraged the broadcast journalism major to play with his video camera. She started off making videos “for something to do,” but after noticing that more than just her friends were watching, she decided to go all in on her YouTube channel MyLifeAsEva. “People told me I was insane,” she says of quitting her job at a pizza place to begin producing as many beauty, comedy and music videos as she could (see sidebar).

The gamble paid off: She’s been on the site for less than three years, but Gutowski, 21, has amassed more than 4 million subscribers; stars in the new, lightly scripted YouTube series How to Survive High School; and is currently on the 20-city Girls’ Night In tour.

Gutowski considers herself “fortunate” to reap the rewards of her success (she now lives in her own two-bedroom apartment, something she “never thought” she’d do while still in college), but she’s most grateful that she’s able to support her 16-year-old sister Maya’s artistic extracurriculars with the excess income Gutowski didn’t have herself as a high school student. “I’m [proof] you don’t need to come from a privileged situation to have a positive outcome in your life,” she says. “If you really want something, you just have to promise yourself that you won’t stop until it happens.” ●

PRODUCER, TALENT MANAGER, CEO Mona Scott-Young

AS A GIRL WATCHING HER SINGLE MOTHER sell arts and crafts to tourists coming off of cruise ships in St. Croix, Mona Scott-Young, 48, saw entrepreneurship firsthand. “She worked around the clock,” recalls Scott-Young. “She did it all on her own.” Now CEO of the $30 million multimedia company Monami Entertainment (whose brands include VH1’s Love & Hip Hop and MYX spirits), she uses that life lesson daily: “I still have the fire in my belly.”

A Mother’s Determination

Scott-Young’s father died when she was 9, leaving her mother, Jeanine Ridore, to care for the family. Although she couldn’t read or write, Ridore still found a way to send her daughter to private school in New York City—by working on its cleaning staff. “She managed to do things with none of the resources other parents had,” says Scott-Young. “She always said, ‘Be better than I am.’”

Starting Out

After high school Scott-Young was living on her own and helping her mother pay bills, so college wasn’t an option. A part-time job at Radio City Music Hall inspired her to enroll in dance classes, where she met a group of women involved in artist development and choreography. They hired her to manage a hip-hop group, and soon she was in business as a talent manager. “I hung a shingle outside the basement of a residential building,” she says, “and that was the beginning of my career.”

Creating an Empire

As her client roster grew to include stars such as Busta Rhymes, Missy Elliott, 50 Cent and LL Cool J, Scott-Young took her mother’s “work around the clock” ethic to heart, devising ways to build her clients’ brands beyond music and into television, publishing and other businesses. Her latest project: founding the wine brand MYX Fusions Moscato with rapper Nicki Minaj. “I’m not afraid to try,” she says, “even if I fall flat on my face.”

Live and Learn

Knowing your business from the ground up is paramount to success, says Scott-Young. “I spent nights at the studio understanding what the engineer does versus the producer because I need to be able to quantify that.” And the married mother of two says she’s not ready to slow down now: “When I leave this Earth, I want to say I did everything I possibly could.” —ELAINE ARADILLAS

ON THE MOVE

The New York native bounced between Canada, the U.S. and the Caribbean as her mom struggled to support the family. “We spent a lot of time packing and unpacking. I didn’t put down roots.”

MAKING A LIVING

As a teen, Scott-Young didn’t know exactly what she wanted to do, but she worked multiple jobs, including retail in New York City. “I always had this innate sense that I could do anything.”

CLOSE PARTNERSHIP

Scott-Young and husband Shawn, who are parents to son Justin, 17, and daughter Jordan, 12, dated for nine years, marrying in 2005. “Our slogan is ‘10 years long, 19 years strong.’”

SEPT. 8, 2015
“I always say to people, ‘Know your business,’” says Scott-Young. “You can’t run things if you don’t know how things run. And love what you do. I really love what I’m doing.”

MOTHER

"I knew my son to be a happy person," says Terri (at home in August 2015).

ASON'S HORRIFIC ACT OF VIOLENCE
"I wish I'd asked him why" he was so quiet, says Terri, who saw Charlie the night before his crimes. "That is a regret."

Around noon on Oct. 2, 2006, Chuck Roberts phoned his wife, Terri. "He said, 'I need you to come to Charlie's house right away,'" Terri says. Her heart thumping, she drove to her oldest son's home as reports on the car radio filled her with panic: A gunman had stormed the local Amish schoolhouse in Nickel Mines, Pa., shooting several young girls. "All I could think was, 'Charlie parks his milk tanker down there by the school. What if he was shot?'" Within seconds of pulling into her son's driveway, she was faced with an even worse horror. "I looked at Chuck, who had the most deep, dark, sunken eyes I have ever seen, and he said, 'It's Charlie. He killed those girls.' I fell to the ground and started wailing."

Roberts recounts that day—and the small miracles that pieced her soul back together—in Forgiven, a new memoir. The book's Oct. 6 release comes just days after Roberts, 64, and her Amish neighbors will have marked nine years since Charlie, then 32, a milk delivery man and seemingly stable father of three, shot 10 schoolgirls—five fatally—before killing himself. The letter he left for his wife spoke of anger at 3. A photo of a smiling Charlie taken the month before he died. "That shows the Charlie I knew," says Terri.

God over losing their firstborn, Eliza, who died after her premature birth in 1997. But after all these years of asking herself what signs she could have missed, Roberts is resigned. "There was nothing about my son's behavior that ever alluded to anything erratic or crazy," she tells People in an emotional, often tearful, interview at the Strasburg, Pa., home where she and Chuck, 66, live. "The answers died with Charlie."

And so she has learned to focus on the living. It didn't come naturally at first. Roberts reeled from grief, shock and guilt—for raising a child who committed such a heinous crime and also, as she puts it, for "the damage to other people's lives caused by the son you gave birth to." And her husband, a retired police officer who drove for the Amish, wondered if they could remain among the pious and peaceful Amish neighbors their son had so brutally wronged—until one of them, Henry Stoltzfoos, showed up at the Robertses' door hours after the shooting to say no one blamed them or wanted them to move. "It felt like the grace of God walked in that door," Roberts says.

It was the first of many gifts from the Amish. Parents of the murdered girls showed up at Charlie's funeral with "genuine compassion," Roberts recalls. While showing support for Roberts and her family was easy, says one of the dads, forgiving Charlie was much more difficult. "Forgiveness is not an instant, overnight thing," he says. "It took several years before most of us could actually feel as though we had forgiven him, and even now we sometimes have to go through that process again." Roberts showed her appreciation by hosting teas and picnics for the surviving victims and their mothers. And she began making weekly visits to the most seriously injured girl,

A COMMUNITY IN MOURNING
 Five Amish women on their way to pray outside the schoolhouse in Nickel Mines, Pa., three days after the shooting.

Rosanna, who was left brain-damaged and in a wheelchair. "It started out, I would rock her," Roberts says. "Now she's 15, so she's a big girl. I help lift her from chair to potty to bed to bath." Roberts says she cares for Rosanna "with joy in my heart that I am invited in to be a part of this family's life." Last year she had to cut those visits to every other week after suffering a recurrence of inflammatory breast cancer, which was first diagnosed in 2002. She's fighting it holistically, with not only a raw vegan diet but also a refusal to relive certain parts of Oct. 2, 2006. "It's not healthy," she says. But the miracles that came in its aftermath are something else entirely. "To my dying day," she says, "I will keep telling this story." ●

Mindy Kaling's idea of a perfect day starts with wandering around her cozy Spanish-style home in L.A. "I leave for work in the morning when it's dark, and I come back at night when it's dark," says the Office alum, "so I never get to see what my house is like during the day." She might throw in a group-exercise class ("do that half-heartedly and leave before the cool-down") and a chunky green smoothie ("probably the only vegetable I'll eat for the day"), then catch up on a few movies ("on iTunes, so I can be in my house") before heading out to dinner with friends—"and Uber-ing so I can have three drinks and fall asleep in the cab ride home," she says. "That's pretty

If You Purchased StarKist Tuna, You May Benefit From A Proposed Class Action Settlement

Hendricks v. StarKist Co., Case No. 13-CV-00729-HSG

WHAT IS THIS NOTICE ABOUT? A lawsuit is pending in the United States District Court, Northern District of California, (the "Action") that may affect your rights. The Action claims that StarKist Co. ("StarKist") under-filled certain 5 oz. canned tuna products in violation of state and federal law. StarKist denies that it underfilled its products and denies that it did anything wrong. The Court has not ruled in favor of Plaintiff or StarKist. Instead, the parties agreed to a proposed settlement to avoid the expense and risks of continuing the lawsuit.

AM I A MEMBER OF THE CLASS? The class is defined as all residents of the United States of America who, from February 19, 2009 through October 31, 2014, purchased one or more of the StarKist Products (i.e. 5 oz. Chunk Light in Water, 5 oz. Chunk Light in Oil, 5 oz. Solid White in Water, and 5 oz. Solid White in Oil).

WHAT DOES THE SETTLEMENT PROVIDE? Subject to Court approval, the parties have agreed to a settlement under which StarKist will pay $8 million in cash and $4 million in vouchers redeemable for StarKist tuna products. You may submit a claim for either (a) a cash payment of $25, or (b) $50 in product vouchers redeemable for StarKist tuna products (the "Settlement Benefits"). You may choose to claim the cash payment or the product vouchers, whichever you prefer. These claim amounts may be subject to pro rata dilution if the total amount of claims exceeds the available settlement funds.

WHAT ARE MY RIGHTS? You have a choice of whether to stay in the Class or not, and you must decide this now. If you stay in the Class, you will be legally bound by all orders and judgments of the Court, and you won't be able to sue, or continue to sue, StarKist as part of any other lawsuit involving the same claims that are in this lawsuit. This is true even if you do nothing by not submitting a claim.

1. You Can Accept the Settlement. Class Members who wish to receive Settlement Benefits must submit claims by November 20, 2015. You can get a Claim Form on the Internet at www.tunalawsuit.com. Read the instructions carefully, fill out the form, and submit it online on or before November 20, 2015. Alternatively, you may also submit a Claim Form by mailing it to the following address: Hendricks v. StarKist Claims Administrator P.O. Box 40007, College Station, TX 77842-4007. It must be postmarked no later than November 20, 2015. If you fail to submit a timely Claim Form and do not exclude yourself from the settlement, then you will be bound by the settlement but will not receive any Settlement Benefits.

2. You Can Object to the Settlement. If you believe the settlement is unsatisfactory, you may file a written objection with the Clerk of the Court for the Northern District of California and send copies to the following Counsel representing the Class and StarKist: Plaintiff's Counsel—Scott A. Bursor, Bursor & Fisher, P.A., 888 Seventh Avenue, New York, NY 10019 and StarKist's Counsel—Robert Hawk, Hogan Lovells LLP, 4085 Campbell Avenue, Suite 100, Menlo Park, CA 94025.

3. You Can "Opt Out" of the Settlement. If you exclude yourself from the Class—which is sometimes called "opting-out" of the Class—you won't get any Settlement Benefits from the Proposed Settlement. You will also be responsible for any attorney's fees and costs you incur if you choose to pursue your own lawsuit. Such notice shall include your name, current address, signature, and a statement that you want to be excluded from the lawsuit Hendricks v. StarKist Co., Case No. 13-CV-00729-HSG, no later than November 20, 2015. Send the written notice to Hendricks v. StarKist Claims Administrator P.O. Box 40007, College Station, TX 77842-4007.

THE FAIRNESS HEARING: On December 17, 2015, at 2:00 p.m., the Court will hold a hearing in the United States District Court for the Northern District of California to determine: (1) whether the proposed settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate and should receive final approval; (2) whether the proposed plan of allocation of the settlement fund is fair, reasonable, and adequate and should receive final approval; (3) whether the application for Plaintiff's attorney's fees of one-third of the total $12 million settlement fund, plus reimbursement of out-of-pocket expenses should be granted. The motion for Plaintiff's attorney's fees and reimbursement of expenses will be filed by October 30, 2015, and will be publicly available for viewing along with supporting materials at www.tunalawsuit.com. Objections to the proposed settlement by Class Members, as well as objections to Plaintiff's motion for attorney's fees and costs, will be considered by the Court, but only if such objections are filed in writing with the Court and sent to Plaintiff's and StarKist's counsel by November 20, 2015 as explained above. No matter what the Court decides with regard to the requested attorney's fees, costs and expenses, Class members will not go out of pocket for the fees or expenses of Class Counsel. Class Members who support the proposed settlement do not need to appear at the hearing or take any other action to indicate their approval. You may hire your own lawyer to appear in Court for you if you wish; however, if you do, you will be responsible for paying that lawyer on your behalf.

HOW CAN I GET MORE INFORMATION? If you have questions or want a detailed notice and other documents about this lawsuit and your rights, visit www.tunalawsuit.com. You may also contact Class Counsel by email at info@bursor.com, or by writing to: Hendricks v. StarKist Claims Administrator P.O. Box 40007, College Station, TX 77842-4007.

THE MINDY PROJECT

The show has been "a roller coaster ride," says Kaling (with Chris Messina, above, and on-set, right), who stars as a now-pregnant OB-GYN—a tribute to her late mother, Swati, a gynecologist who died of pancreatic cancer in 2012.

much my dream day."

For Kaling, 36, those perfectly lazy days are few and far between. In addition to writing, producing and starring in her Hulu sitcom The Mindy Project (the fourth season premiered Sept. 15), Kaling has just released her second book—a follow-up to her 2011 memoir—called Why Not Me? With her famously self-deprecating wit, Kaling picks up where she left off, opening up about everything from her ongoing struggle with body image to the perks of working with close friends and what heartbreak has taught her. "I should have that [perfect] day more often," she muses, "but then, I think the trade-off is that I get to have this dream job. I hire all my friends to come work on the show so it doesn't feel like 'work-work.' They help keep things in perspective for me."

Dating dramas, of course, play a major role in both her show and the book. Kaling will be the first to admit that her close friendship with actor

B.J. Novak, her ex-boyfriend and Office costar, is "weird as hell." So much so that she now goes out of her way not to offer dating advice. "No one needs a late bloomer in their mid-30s telling other people how to date," she says. Further proof—also chronicled in the book—is her fade-in-fade-out affair with "Will," an Obama aide she met during a meeting with the President a few years ago. "Heartbreak makes you so smart," says Kaling. "That was one of the first times in a romantic situation that I had to make an active choice to be not dramatic. That was a huge step for me. I could have gone through that theatrical don't-eat-for-three-weeks, all-encompassing-heartbreak breakup, but that was really the instance where I

In Her Own Words

Despite receiving praise for being “so real,” Kaling admits that she’s tried it all when it comes to conforming to Hollywood’s standard of beauty. And “I am just not remotely successful at it,” she writes in her new book. Here, she describes a failed attempt at a juice cleanse—with no regrets.

Like everyone in Southern California, I’ve attempted several juice cleanses. If you live in the city of Los Angeles, it is your legal right to be able to purchase freshly squeezed kale juice from any gas station within a twenty-mile radius of the Hollywood sign. I did my first juice cleanse during the last week of 2012 as a sort of spiritual detox to prepare myself for 2013. I was a little weird then; I was watching a lot of OWN, and trying to be my best self.

In that week, I lost a full dress size. I only stopped because David Stassen, one of our writers, ordered French fries at lunch and couldn’t finish them. He said, “I’m throwing these away. Does anyone want any?” In our writers’ room, someone tossing a half-eaten container of French fries is like someone at a Wall Street IPO announcement party declaring that they were just going to throw away a bag of high-quality cocaine. I lost my mind. I lunged at him and inhaled all of his fries standing up a foot away from the trash can. No food is as delicious as food you eat standing a foot away from a trash can. Ask any possum.

decided happiness is a choice I can make. I just learned so much from it.”

Kaling’s also learned a lot about measuring self-esteem, especially amid the challenges of celebrity. Although she admits to suffering through her fair share of juice cleanses (see excerpt) and has worked out with a personal trainer, Kaling isn’t shy about criticizing Hollywood’s penchant for perfection. “I think the reason that such a big deal is made of how I look is that women who are my size are so rarely seen on TV and film,” she writes. “Most women we see onscreen are either so thin that they’re walking clavicles or so huge that their only scenes involve them breaking furniture and eating whole pies.”

‘I write everything the same way, sitting on my unmade bed in my bedroom’

Not that Kaling is complaining about her current lot in life. “I’m proud that it all came from hard work,” she says. Even if she does sometimes long for those lazy “perfect days.” “Being able to sleep for eight or nine hours after two Moscow mules—that’s my feeling of happiness,” she says. “I don’t have children; maybe looking into your child’s eyes is a better answer. But I think the truth for me, now, is that.” ●

BFFs
“I was a little nervous, but he didn’t care,” says Kaling of letting Novak read the parts of the book about their relationship.

LEGAL NOTICE

If You Bought Products at a Michael Kors Outlet Store You May Be Eligible for a Payment from a Class Action Settlement

A Settlement has been reached in a class action lawsuit concerning the labeling and marketing of merchandise sold in Michael Kors Outlet Stores during the period July 25, 2010 through July 25, 2014. The lawsuit alleges that Michael Kors deceptively and misleadingly labeled and marketed merchandise that it sells at its Michael Kors Outlet Stores, including by using allegedly misleading price tags on its Michael Kors Outlet Products, which Plaintiffs claim resulted in damages to Plaintiffs and the Settlement Class. Michael Kors maintains that its marketing and labeling is not deceptive or misleading, and is entirely proper and permitted by law.

Who’s included?

You are included in the Settlement Class if between July 25, 2010, and July 25, 2014 you purchased at least one item at a Michael Kors Outlet Store that was sold with a price tag showing both an “MSRP” (Manufacturer’s Suggested Retail Price) and an “Our Price.” These items do not include watches, jewelry, fragrances, eyewear or any other product that did not have a price tag that showed both an “MSRP” and an “Our Price.” The Settlement Class does not include directors, officers or employees of Michael Kors, its parents and subsidiaries, or any entity in which Michael Kors has a controlling interest.

What are the Settlement terms?

Michael Kors has agreed to establish a Settlement Fund of $4,875,000 from which Settlement Class Members will receive payments. Individual payment amounts cannot be determined at this time and will be based on a number of factors, including the number of Settlement Class Members who submit a valid Claim Verification Form and the amount of the Settlement Fund available for distribution. Michael Kors has also agreed to change the labeling of its price tags of certain items in its outlet stores.

How to get a payment.

To receive a payment, you must submit a Claim Verification Form online at www.MichaelKorsOutletSettlement.com or by mail. If you would like to submit the form by mail, you may request one by calling 1-866-879-7386. Your Claim Verification Form must be fully completed and submitted online or postmarked if by mail no later than 30 days after the Court grants Final Approval in order to receive a check in the mail for your share of the Settlement.

Your rights may be affected.

If you do not want to be legally bound by the Settlement, you must exclude yourself from the Settlement Class. Your request to exclude must be postmarked no later than December 8, 2015. If you do not exclude yourself, you will release your Michael Kors Outlet Store pricing claims and will not be able to sue Michael Kors for any claim relating to the lawsuit. If you stay in the Settlement Class, you may object to it by December 8, 2015. For further information on how to exclude yourself or object to the Settlement, please visit the website, or call the phone number, listed below.

The Court will hold a hearing on January 7, 2016, to consider whether to approve the Settlement and a request for Service Awards of $5,000 each for the Plaintiffs and attorneys’ fees of up to 30% of the Settlement Fund, along with the reimbursement of expenses. You may appear at the hearing, but you are not required to attend. You may hire your own attorney, at your own expense, to appear or speak for you at the hearing.

Do not contact Michael Kors or the Court for information.

All capitalized terms herein have the same meanings as those in the Settlement Agreement.

ONES to WATCH

Star Wars, a pop princess and a whole new girl squad: 26 of the industry's brightest breakouts take Hollywood by storm

Daisy Ridley

THE ENGLISH ROSE

• Stepping onto the set of Star Wars: Episode VII—The Force Awakens, Ridley, 23, had an “overwhelming fear,” she says. “That was probably the hardest thing, because I hadn’t made a film before.” But with the support of her cast and crew, “I never felt alone,” says the actress, who plays scrappy Rey. With one of the year’s most anticipated movies under her belt, what’s next for the Brit beauty? “I’m just going to plod through life and see what comes my way!”

JOHN BOYEGA

THE REVELATION

• When J.J. Abrams told him he had landed the role of Storm Trooper Finn in Star Wars: Episode VII—The Force Awakens, “literally everything just froze,” says Boyega, 23.

“The whole world was perfect in that one moment.” On-set, the actor gamely braved the Abu Dhabi heat. “The sun was at its highest, and it was really, really sweaty,” he adds. “But what I did remember was the old behind-the-scenes footage of Anthony Daniels in C-3PO’s costume, so I didn’t complain. I took some ice baths!”

Edgar Ramírez

THE LEADING MAN

• With two movies coming out in December (on the same day!) and three more lined up for 2016, life has been “a little bit crazy,” says Ramírez, 38, a former political journalist. In Joy, the Venezuelan actor—who is also the lead in the Point Break remake—stars opposite Jennifer Lawrence, as her husband. “Her energy is contagious,” says Ramírez. “She’s so courageous and wise. We had a lot of compassion for each other.”

PRIYANKA CHOPRA

THE CROSSOVER

• “I wanted to be an engineer,” Chopra, 33, says of her aspirations prior to winning Miss World at 18. Already a star in her native India, she will now star in ABC’s Quantico: “I didn’t want to play a stereotype. I wanted a great part, and they found me one. She’s like a female Jason Bourne.”

LILLY SINGH

YOUTUBE QUEEN

• Depressed and directionless, Singh, 26, found her calling when she discovered YouTube. “I was totally captivated by it,” says the comedy writer, whose channel ||Superwoman|| has 6.5 million subscribers. “I used to do sketches with just audio for my family, so [switching] to video was an organic process.”

IKE BARINHOLTZ

THE FUNNYMAN

• The Mindy Project and Sisters star once dreamed of running for office. “I was obsessed with politics,” says the Chicagoan, 38. “I think I just wanted to boss people around.” Now, as a writer-actor, “I don’t know which one I like more,” he says. “When you’re writing in your underwear and then saying the words [on-camera], it’s really fulfilling.”

Maddie Ziegler

THE PRODIGY

• The Dance Moms sensation is already modeling and acting in addition to starring in music videos including Sia's songs "Chandelier" and "Elastic Heart," which together have garnered more than 1 billion YouTube views. As for being recognized, "people will say, 'Oh, you inspired me to dance,' which is such an amazing thing to hear," says the 12-year-old from Murrysville, Pa. "Sometimes it can get overwhelming, and I just want to be a kid and go get ice cream with my friends, but it's been fun being able to meet people from all around the world."

JACK HOWARD & DEAN DOBBS

THE LAUGHS FACTORY

• The British comedy duo (known to their almost 500,000 YouTube subscribers as simply Jack & Dean) have already collaborated with the likes of Amy Schumer and are working on their first long-form Web series. "I never really knew what I wanted to do, but I knew I wanted to make something and have fun doing it," says Dobbs, 23 (right). Adds Howard, 23: "I can't believe we get to do this as a job. It feels a little bit like we're cheating and skipping steps."

Rami Malek

THE CRITICS' DARLING

• As the lead in USA's computer-hacker drama Mr. Robot, Malek says he's continually grateful for "the challenges that get thrown at me. It's one of the fullest characters I think I'll ever get to play." The L.A.-born-and-raised actor, 34, who also starred in Tom Hanks's The Pacific miniseries, would get into carpentry if not for his day job. "When I was younger, I used to make lamps and frames for art," he says. "I'd like to do something with my hands."

TORI KELLY

THE POP PRINCESS

• Since collaborating with Ed Sheeran on "I Was Made for Loving You"—a song on Unbreakable Smile, her hit debut LP of acoustic pick-me-ups and R&B-tinged songs—the SoCal native calls him a friend. For her fall tour Kelly, 22, will put the lesson she learned from him into practice: "Just be yourself—on and off the stage."

AUBREY PEEPLES

THE INGENUE

• Like the young country singer she plays on ABC's Nashville, Peeples deferred Harvard (twice!) to pursue her dream of being a performer. "I'd still like to go to college at some point," says the Lake Mary, Fla., native, 21. But since she's in the lead role of the upcoming film version of the 1980s cartoon Jem and the Holograms, the books may have to wait.

WALK THE MOON

THE ROCKERS

• After MTV's Video Music Awards, Sean Waugaman, 28, Nicholas Petricca, 28, Kevin Ray, 26, and Eli Maiman, 29, found themselves at Miley Cyrus's afterparty, and that was just fine with them. "We are taking a stand for diversity and equality," says lead singer Petricca about the band's feel-good songs, like their runaway hit "Shut Up and Dance." "Miley's very much about that."

SCREAM QUEENS THE HOT CAST

TESSA THOMPSON THE DREAMER

• As a child growing up in L.A., Thompson would “write and direct these little movies with my father, so it was something that was always in me,” she says. Now the Selma actress, 31, who costars with Michael B. Jordan in the upcoming film Creed, looks to actors like Tilda Swinton for inspiration. “She’s been able to stretch the parameters of what it is to be a woman in Hollywood,” Thompson says. “That’s something I’m interested in.”

MAGGIE LAWSON THE SITCOM DARLING

• Though she appeared on Cybill as a teen, Lawson, now 35, faced tough breaks. “When I was 21, I tested for 14 pilots and didn’t get one,” she says. Now she’ll shine on the CBS comedy Angel from Hell. Her motto? “I just kept going forward.”

Adam DeVine THE COMIC RELIEF

• Costarring with Robert De Niro in The Intern “was like working with, like, Jesus Christ or something,” says the Nebraskan, 31. “My goal was just to make him laugh.” The Pitch Perfect and Workaholic actor has had his family’s unwavering support since being hit by a cement truck when he was 11. “My parents kind of gave me a free pass to truly follow my dreams,” he says. “They were just so happy I wasn’t dead.”

FRANCESCA EASTWOOD

THE LEGACY

• The daughter of Clint Eastwood and Frances Fisher, she made her acting debut at the age of 2 but then “decided to have a mellow childhood.” Now 22, she’s back with a stint on NBC’s Heroes Reborn and a starring role in the western thriller Outlaws and Angels. “It’s been such a whirlwind,” she says. “But I’m finally starting to accomplish my dream.”

NATHAN SYKES

THE VOICE

• Between five years in the Wanted and a famous ex (Ariana Grande), Sykes, 22, has some experience in the spotlight. But with the hot new single “Over and Over Again” and a solo debut due next year, the Gloucester, U.K., native is a hometown hero: “If I go into a local pub, it’ll be like, ‘All right, Nate, d’you want a pint?’ It’s really cool.”

Domhnall Gleeson

THE IN-DEMAND IMPORT

• He costars with Leonardo DiCaprio in the Oscar-contending historical drama The Revenant—and that’s his small film. On Dec. 18 he’ll portray General Hux in Star Wars: Episode VII—The Force Awakens. “I hope there’s a toy of me for Star Wars,” says the Irish actor, 32, who starred as Bill Weasley in the Harry Potter films. “Bill wasn’t important enough, so I never got a wand. I’m still desperate for one.”

SHANICE WILLIAMS

THE BREAKTHROUGH

• Williams, 19, was only looking for a “learning experience” when she got in line at the open-call audition for the role of Dorothy in NBC’s upcoming The Wiz Live! “There wasn’t even a moment where I prayed, ‘God, please let me get this part,’ because that seemed impossible,” says the Jersey girl.

KATHLEEN ROSE PERKINS

THE SCENE-STEALER

• After Showtime’s Episodes wraps its fifth season, Perkins, 40, is hoping to make her own opportunities. “I’m optioning a book so I can produce a story where I can be a bit of an action [star],” says the actress, who has a third-degree black belt in tae kwon do. “My body is getting older, so I need to do it soon!”

PHILIP WINCHESTER

THE ACTION HERO

• As the face of NBC's The Player, Winchester, 34, is learning to balance work and daddy duties with 7-month-old daughter Charlie. "I try and help out as much as possible on the week-ends," he says. "I couldn't do it without [my wife] Megan. We're a team."

BRIE LARSON & JACOB TREMBLAY

THE DYNAMIC DUO

• Larson may compare her career thus far to a game of Super Mario ("You're like, 'This is awesome,' but then you keep dying, and then you go back to the beginning again," she says about the ups and downs of Hollywood), but the actress is already garnering Oscar buzz for her role as a kidnapped mother in Room. "We just became best pals and partners in crime," says Larson, 25, of her remarkable onscreen son Tremblay, 8. "He helped me so much."

KELSEA BALLERINI

THE COUNTRY
SWEETHEART

• When Taylor Swift sang her praises on Twitter, "I thought one of my friends hacked her [account]!" says the CMA double nominee, 22, who made history when her debut single, "Love Me Like You Mean It," soared to No. 1. Swift's advice for the singer? "She told me, 'Be warm, and people will relate to that.'"

EVAN ROSS

THE ENTERTAINER

• When Ross (whose mom is Diana Ross) accepted his role on the new ABC drama Wicked City, the production's L.A. base helped seal the deal. "I could still work on my music and other projects," says the Hunger Games: Mockingjay alum, 27, who welcomed daughter Jagger Snow with wife Ashlee Simpson in July. "I don't want to miss a thing at home right now."

Reunited After 9 Years

THE GOLDSTONS DROVE MORE THAN 2,500 MILES TO RECLAIM THE BELOVED PET THEY LOST ALMOST A DECADE AGO—BUT NEVER FORGOT BY ALEXANDRA HURTADO

In 2006 Lloyd Goldston and his family were packing up to move from Memphis to Lacey's Spring, Ala., when their 8-month-old boxer mix Boozer went missing. "He was a little upset by all the activity, I think, and he ran off," says Goldston. "We spent two extra days searching for him, but eventually we had to go. It was horrible. We never forgot about him." Boozer—bought as a gift for Goldston's stepdaughter Megan—was taken in by a new family, who eventually moved to Colorado. And last month he was given to the Foothills Animal Shelter in Golden, Colo., because his owner could "no longer care for him," says shelter rep

"He's a very happy dog," says Lloyd Goldston.

Jenn Strickland. Luckily the Goldstons initially had the dog implanted with a microchip, so when workers scanned him, the family's contact info popped up. "I cried," Goldston says of the news that Boozer had finally been located. Later that week the 43-year-old project manager made the 16-plus-hour drive with Megan, now 24, and his son Will, 17, to reunite with their long-lost dog. "He recognized us right away," says Goldston. "He made a beeline straight to Megan and jumped into her arms." Now back in Alabama with his family, Boozer has returned in time for Megan's nuptials next month. Says Goldston: "He's going to be in the wedding! Front row." ●

Expert Tip!

'Flatbreads cook quickly on the grill, so have all your toppings ready to go,' says Ford. 'Then spread them evenly so you taste a little of everything.'

BEN FORD

Peach & Prosciutto Flatbread

EVERY BITE OF THE CELEBRITY CHEF'S DISH IS BURSTING WITH BRIGHT, FRESH FLAVOR

1 lb. store-bought pizza dough
All-purpose flour, for dusting
Extra-virgin olive oil
2 peaches, cut into wedges
Kosher salt
Freshly ground black pepper
½ cup crumbled goat cheese
2 tbsp. grated Parmesan
3 oz. prosciutto, torn into pieces
½ cup baby arugula
2 tsp. honey

1. Preheat a grill or grill pan to medium-high. Lightly dust a work surface with flour. Cut pizza dough in half. Roll out each portion into an 8x14-in. rectangle, about ¼-in. thick. Brush grill with oil.
2. Lightly oil and season peaches with salt and pepper. Grill for 2 to 3 minutes on each side until the peaches have nice grill marks; set aside. Grill dough for 2 to 3 minutes or until bubbles start to form and bottom is well-marked. Brush the top of the flatbreads with oil, flip, and grill for 2 to 3 minutes more or until well-marked.
3. Scatter the cheeses, prosciutto and peaches over the flatbreads. Place back on the grill for an additional 1 to 2 minutes until toppings are heated through. Top with arugula, and drizzle with honey.
Serves: 6 to 8
Prep time: 10 minutes Cook time: 10 minutes

Strawberry & Blueberry Crumble

'THIS WAS ONE OF THE FIRST DESSERTS I EVER MADE,' SAYS THE CHOPPED JUDGE AND AUTHOR OF THE CHEF NEXT DOOR

- 1¾ cups plus 3 tbsp. all-purpose flour, divided
- 1 cup packed light-brown sugar
- Pinch of kosher salt
- ½ cup unsalted butter, cold, cut into small pieces
- 4 cups strawberries, hulled and quartered
- 1 cup blueberries
- Zest of 1 lemon
- Whipped cream or vanilla ice cream, optional

1. Preheat the oven to 375°.
  2. To make the crumble topping, mix 1¾ cup flour, sugar and salt in a medium bowl. Use your hands to combine the butter into the flour until the mixture is in small lumps; set aside.
  3. To make the filling, gently mix the berries, lemon zest and 3 tbsp. flour in a 9x9-in. baking dish. Use a spatula or the back of a wooden spoon to flatten the fruit into an even surface.
  4. Sprinkle the crumble mixture over the fruit, covering the filling as much as possible. Bake for about 35 minutes, or until the fruit starts to bubble and the crumble is lightly browned. Serve warm with fresh whipped cream or ice cream.
- Makes: 4 to 6 servings
Prep time: 15 minutes
Cook time: 35 minutes

Expert Tip!

Avoid a mess: 'Place your baking dish on a sheet pan before putting the crumble in the oven,' says Freitag. 'The berries like to bubble over.'

WHIPPED CREAM, 3 WAYS

1 CUP HEAVY CREAM
 + 1 TBSP. SUGAR
 + 1 TSP. VANILLA EXTRACT

Pour ingredients into a jar, seal and shake vigorously for 5 minutes.

Freeze a metal bowl and whisk for 10 minutes. Whip cream until stiff peaks form.

Chill beaters in the freezer for 10 minutes. Mix ingredients until fluffy.

MARIO LOPEZ'S Kiddie Carnival

The highlight of the kids' shared birthday party was "just seeing the family together," says Lopez.

IT WAS DOUBLE THE FUN

for Mario Lopez and his wife, Courtney Mazza, 33, when they hosted a carnival-themed joint birthday party for their two kids, daughter Gia, 5, and son Dominic, 2, at their L.A. home on Sept. 12. "I love that the kids' birthdays are two days apart so I can do the combo party," the Extra host, 41, tells People. "I'm going to try to get away with that as long as I can!" The fete featured a magician, a face painter and a balloon artist along with a bouncy house and "the biggest piñata that you've ever seen," says Lopez. Eighty guests feasted on carnival-themed foods, including pizza, popcorn, hot dogs and cotton candy. "The kids really loved the colors and the feel of it all," says Lopez. (The partygoers took home favor boxes, personalized by Mabel's Labels, filled with an assortment of goodies, including animal crackers, nail polish and stickers.) "I'd love to have my kids stay small, but I'm so happy to see them growing up into respectful, polite, big kids," says Lopez. "That's what's most important to me."

Minty nature. He's always got gum in his mouth, that's the minty [part], but it's [also] a fresh scent—very much like a forest. It's nice. He won't tell me what he uses, but there's some oil that I see. I think he just pats it on and goes.

a whole new way and then put him to bed and go out to the afterparty! My advice to my 20-year-old self would be...
Use sunscreen. I didn't put on SPF; I wanted nothing to do with it. I just poured on oil and tanned. Now I'm so thankful for spray tans. They're a great invention!

Cindy Crawford

THE MODEL AND BUSINESS MOGUL, 49, REFLECTS ON HER LIFE IN HER NEW BOOK BECOMING

Last vice

Tequila. But I feel like I'm supporting the family business, so I don't feel so guilty about it. Normally we drink Casamigos on the rocks, but this summer I'd go swimming with friends, and my husband [Rande Gerber] would make margaritas like watermelon mint. All the girls wanted to swim at my house.

Last time I cried

When I cry it's usually because I feel overwhelmed. It can be over a Hallmark commercial or if someone in my family looks at me the wrong way. But I find crying cathartic sometimes.

Last time I danced

In Ibiza at a party. A deejay was playing at some club, and I was there with Rande and George and Amal [Clooney] for Casamigos. We stayed out late that night. When you're in Ibiza, everything is late.

Last game I played

We are a game-playing family. We play Mafia. You have to defend yourself, but sometimes you're lying about it. Not that my daughter [Kaia, 14] is a good liar, but she could be a lawyer.

Last moment of bliss

At the lake when it's just us, hanging out, having dinner, watching a movie. The older my kids get, the more I cherish times where we're together. Those are the moments that get you through.
